To Whom It May Concern
Re: Maya Mazen Tammar
Date of Birth: 23 October 2005

I have had the distinct pleasure of having Maya Tammar as a student in my Biology class. Maya has been more than an exemplary student. It is a pleasure to recommend her for the undergraduate programme at your institution. In order to achieve the highest grades, Maya has demonstrated strong will and eager commitment.

Overall, Maya is highly intelligent and has good analytical and communication skills. She is a fast learner and was able to cope successfully with consistency and diligence. I would rate her academic performance in my class as excellent, she is resourceful and creative. Observing Maya's linguistic and academic skills, she was able to construct a positive image of herself in the school and gained the admiration and respect of all of her teachers. Her critical thinking, attention to details, and curiosity are also qualities that enable her to approach any problem with the right questions in mind and right tools in hand.

On the other hand, Maya is engaged in many social activities that involve sports, social events planning, and tutoring, all of which have taught her some leadership and organization skills; this was visible in resolving her group's disagreements during the Group 4 project, when her teammates could not agree on a topic and she was able to help them reach a consensus by catching the interests that they shared which could be put together in one project.

To conclude, Maya was simply a pleasure to teach. She was kind and respectful, she showed interest in new topics of research in the field of Biology, and she was proactive in terms of assignments she was allocated. I strongly recommend Maya, a talented and intelligent student with charisma, empathy and strong values. I am looking forward to seeing all the great accomplishments Maya is capable of contributing to her future field of study, work and society.

Sincerely,
