

My name is Sultan Alshalawi, an international student from Saudi Arabia and I wish to pursue my master degree at the Arizona state University.

In the age of globalization, it is crucial to have a broad international outlook. Personally, the USA boasts an excellent cultural atmosphere, as well as sophistication in education and areas of scientific and technological advancement. For these reasons, I hope to acquire a degree in Air Transportation Management and from Arizona state University institutes and learn from reputable schools with outstanding learning facilities such as Arizona state University. Getting admitted into Arizona state University, I feel I will be constantly open to skills and ideas that will allow me to develop into an Environment professional with unlimited potential.

Growing up, I had been absorbing many ideas and concepts related to Air Transportation Management. I used occasionally read articles and periodicals such as Forbes, and I realized that this field actually interest me. Recently, I earned my Bachelor's degree in Aeronautics Science from Embry Riddle Aeronautical University Prescott AZ, where I attended many management-related courses, including....

In addition to my gained knowledge from school, I further developed my skills by exploring the working field following my graduation. I worked as a Flight Operation in Saudi Air National Guard (2018-aug 2019), and. I work as operation control and Aviation safety in General Authority of Civil Aviation (sep2019-Present)

Finally, I hope that in the near future, with the guidance of the experienced faculty in Arizona state University. I will be able to engage in an enthusiastic learning environment and acquire a more profound academic foundation. I eventually plan to work as a professional manager, and this degree will undoubtedly help me reach my long-term aspirations.

Sincerely,

Sultan Alshalawi
