Dear PGR administration staff

I am writing to express my interest in the master program in the Business school at Queen Mary University of London.

I am particularly keen on to apply for MSc Human Resource Management program in the Business school as its research interests are an excellent match for my academic background. While studying for my BA in Business Administration at King Saud University, I developed a particular interest in how Human Resource works to make business efficient. My BA study was on the field of Human Resource Management. Furthermore, I have gained a proper knowledge with the field of Human Resource Management through working as Coordinator of human resources at Wardat Almashreq Company in Saudi Arabia where I filled the position for more than two years. My work helped me gaining experiences in human resource management field that improves my personal and academic skills in the area.

I now wish to continue my academic studies with applying in the MSc program of Human Resource Management, and I cannot imagine a better place to study such a program than the Business school at Queen Mary University of London. With the department's expertise in Business and Human Resource, it would be the ideal location for enhancing my background and skills.

I am confident that I can pursue the Master program plan as I already have gained an experience in the field of Human Resource and coordination of research project. In my bachelor's study, I focused on how business can be managed and I used a quantitative methodology, recruited participants, assisted with the data analysis, and contributed to theoretical knowledge. I believe that these skills and experiences will allow me to complete a postgraduate project effectively.

After completing the MSc, I plan to upgrade my career position and have a promotion in the Human Resource, likely in the area of staff work productivity. Having the MSc degree would enable me to hold the position and many thanks for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Abdulrahman Alasmari.
