

Personal Statement.

Growing up in Saudi Arabia I was obsessed with sports especially football (soccer). That was the most popular sport in my neighbourhood and nationally. I was an avid player and I enjoyed the incredible feeling I got if I or other team members scored. This sensation spurred me on to think about taking up a career in this fascinating sport. Unfortunately, I was not as skilled at the game, so I decided I would complete my major in a related subject. I was always asking teachers if I could participate in all sports sessions. So before long, I realised that I had excellent skills in organising and motivating others. My teacher encouraged me to arrange the football team tournament. This became a path that I felt very comfortable with and I branched out into other sporting activities such as volleyball and basketball. From a young age I was able to recognise my strengths and was very clear about what I would be studying unlike my other peers. I have exceptional skills in teaching pupils the discipline required in sports. I am patient and can be very supportive of the team. I can recognise the strengths and weaknesses of the individual and the team as a whole. I have undoubtedly got the interest and the enthusiasm to make a success of my chosen career. Having obtained an honours degree in sport science and movement, I am well versed in the subject material covered in the master's programme. I have additional skills in first aid and fundamental skills in teaching students techniques of throwing kicking, running jumping, hopping, and catching. I have good listening skills and have achieved a high level of leadership qualities. English is my second language but I have been studying advanced English language at two international schools in England. I will continue my English studies in order to be more effective at communication and interpersonal skills. I have applied to two football schools in Manchester (Salford city and Stockport county) as a volunteer to get experience for this course. I have researched Universities that excel in sport management. My government is very supportive of students attending overseas Universities. I feel I have spent many years studying sports and sciences in order to do a master's degree and fulfill my childhood ambition.
