

Growing up in different countries, I was aware of political diversity from a young age. I believe such exposure led me to discover my passion for the field of Politics, in which I would like to pursue my future career. In addition, I grew up in a family that is interested in the world's issues, problems, changes, histories, leaders, and nations. Therefore, as time passed, I developed an innate interest in knowing the different humanitarian matters taking place around the world and in exploring governmental policies to achieve growth and stability. Thus, I decided to specialize in Politics by attaining an undergraduate degree in such an important field. I believe that achieving social and political equality within communities will certainly lead to positive outcomes that we look forward to.

My decision to major in Politics at one of the most prestigious institutions around the world, King's College London followed my strong desire and will to receive an excellent foundation in the field in which I am passionate. I am sure that the strong academic programs at King's will equip me with the theoretical knowledge and practical training I am looking forward to. Nevertheless, the exceptional body of faculty, professors, and professionals at King's will teach me the basics, will guide me to the path of excellence and will ensure to provide me with the needed professional skills to establish a profound career.

Specializing in Politics has become my goal. I believe that it plays a vital role and has a significant impact on people's lives and futures around the world. Therefore, this makes it a rewarding profession. In addition, it is a field that is involved in various sectors and disciplines offering a vast variety of career opportunities. For instance, it has a role in law, healthcare, the economy, commerce, etc. Attaining an academic degree will equip me with the advanced knowledge and specialized skills needed not only to prosper and succeed within the field but to well-serve it as well. That is, I am eager to develop my skills concerning effective communication, critical thinking, and problem-solving, and explore the different sub-disciplines within the field. I believe that such knowledge and skills will help me better address global matters in strategic, innovative, and effective ways.

To give you a brief introduction about myself. My name is Lamar Zehar Filemban, I am from the Kingdom of Saudi Arabia. I lived for six years from 2008 to 2014 in Fort Collins Colorado. I have been recognized for my excellent performance in high school. I enjoy studying English and Chemistry and they are my favorite subjects. Reading and writing are what I like to do during my free time. Regarding extracurricular activities, I found joy in participating in the school's speech and debate clubs. I consider myself an enthusiastic, helpful, and active individual. I have been enrolled and participated in many activities inside and outside the school campus. For instance, I was a member of the Debate Club, a volunteer in the Down Syndrome awareness week, a student teacher in the math and English language clubs, an active volunteer in community services and social work, and a participant in the Robotic Olympiad. I am personally inspired by Adel Aljubair who is the Saudi Minister of State for Foreign Affairs because he is a prominent politician and I looked up to him and wish to become a politician like him one day. My previous experiences helped me develop many important skills as communication, teamwork, and time management. I assure you that you will find me a valuable asset to your brilliant body of students and alumnae at King's College London and I hope you will accept my application to be part of your exceptional community.

Sincerely,
