

To Whom This May Concern,

I am writing this recommendation letter at the request of my student Bader Al-Yousef. He is an outstanding young individual. I have had the pleasure of supervising and teaching him closely at Najd National School in the Kingdom of Saudia Arabia for the past 3 years. I taught him grade 10 mathematics and am currently teaching him grade 12 mathematics. During these years he has shown some tremendous examples of his strength and dedication. I understand he is applying to your college and would like to suggest him for acceptance.

Bader can complete any assignment with enthusiasm that is inspiring even for his teachers. I would like to take the opportunity to make a note of Bader's academic capacity. While studying for my subject of mathematics, many times he has demonstrated excellent commitment and performance.

I am proud of his commitment to his academics. His marks will show you that he is a great student. He has shown reliability many times and it is my belief that he will continue to do so in the future. He is a hard worker and is also well liked by his peers. He is an excellent applicant for your college/university. Feel free to contact me at my email mrifai99@hotmail.com

Yours Sincerely,

Mohamad El-Rifai

High School Mathematics Teacher
